Biographical/Historical note

Biographical Information:

Edgar Allan Poe was born on January 19, 1809 in Boston, MA. His parents were both struggling actors, and upon his father's disappearance and his mother's death, Poe was raised as a foster child by the wealthy Allan family in Richmond, VA. Poe attended the University of Virginia and West Point, but failed to graduate from either institution. He served in the Army from 1827 to 1829 when he was discharged. After he left the military, Poe moved to Baltimore with his aunt, Maria Clemm and her daughter Virginia. By this time, Poe published Tamerlane and Other Poems (1827), Al Aaraaf, Tamerlane, and Minor Poems (1829), and Poems (1831). Once in Baltimore, Poe began writing prose tales, five of which appeared in the Philadelphia Saturday Courier in 1832. In 1835, Poe became the editor of the Southern Literary Messenger until he was asked to leave in 1837. During his time as editor Poe became known for his harsh critiques and wild stories. From 1839 to 1840, Poe worked in Philadelphia as editor of Burton's Gentleman's Magazine. In 1841, he became editor of Graham's Magazine, but left a year later hoping to establish his own literary journal. By 1844, Poe moved to New York, with his wife, Virginia, whom he married in 1836, and her mother (his aunt) Maria Clemm. In 1845, Poe became famous with his success for "The Raven." He edited the Broadway Journal until it folded in 1847, the same year as Virginia died.

The last few years of Poe's life are a mystery. It is known that Poe was in Richmond with his new fiancée and old sweetheart, Elmira Shelton, when he left on a boat bound for Philadelphia. Instead of reaching Philadelphia, he ended up unconscious on a street in Baltimore. Poe was found outside a tavern and taken to Washington College Hospital. The attending physician, Dr. J.J. Moran, reported that Poe had symptoms of tremors and delirium. The exact cause of Poe's death is unknown. Poe died October 7, 1849.

Besides the previously mentioned volumes of poetry, Poe published many works of fiction. Some of those works include The Narrative of Arthur Gordon Pym, 1838, Tales of the Grotesque and Arabesque, 1840, The Prose Romances of Edgar A. Poe, No. I. Containing the Murders in the Rue Morgue, and The Man That Was Used Up, 1843, Tales by Edgar A. Poe, 1845, and Eureka: A Prose Poem, 1848.

Immediate Source of Acquisition note

Source of Acquisition:

The collection is a combination of two large benefactors, Amelia F. Poe and Sara Sigourney Rice, and some smaller pieces have been added over the years. Amelia Poe's gift of letters, books, clippings and other memorabilia was presented to the Library by Margaret Cheston Carey, a niece of Amelia Fitzgerald Poe in 1936. Amelia was the daughter of Judge Neilson Poe, a second cousin and close friend of Edgar. The collection was left to Reverend Neilson Poe Carey of Massachusetts by Amelia Poe and, upon Reverend Carey's death in 1935, the collection went to Margaret Carey with the provision that it be presented to a public institution. In 1942, Pratt received the collection of Sara Sigourney Rice. Rice, a Baltimore schoolteacher, led a crusade to clear Poe's name in the years following his death. She was responsible for the movement that led to the erection of the Poe Monument and reinterment of his remains from a questionable location to a place of prominence at Westminster Churchyard in downtown Baltimore.
